

Marketing Campaign Launch Governance Guidelines

Internal requirements for Q3 product launch campaigns

Document purpose: provide realistic checklist context for AI-assisted checklist generation.

1. Campaign Intake and Approval

- Every campaign must have a named Campaign Owner, Product Marketing Lead, Legal Reviewer, and Analytics Contact before creative work begins.
- The Campaign Owner must define the target segment, primary business objective, launch region, planned launch date, and campaign budget.
- Campaigns with budget above EUR 25,000 require written approval from the Marketing Director before media booking.
- Campaigns targeting healthcare, financial services, minors, or regulated industries require Legal review before any external copy is shared.

2. Messaging and Claims Requirements

- All public claims must be traceable to an approved source such as customer research, product documentation, benchmark results, or signed customer quotes.
- Performance claims must include the measurement basis, tested product version, sample size, and date of measurement.
- Do not use absolute language such as 'best', 'guaranteed', 'risk-free', or 'industry-leading' unless Legal has approved the exact wording.
- The final message house must include one primary value proposition, three supporting proof points, and one approved call to action.

3. Creative Asset Checklist

- Each launch must produce a landing page, email announcement, paid social ad set, organic social post, sales enablement one-pager, and short product explainer script.
- Every asset must include the approved campaign name, product name, campaign UTM code, regional disclaimer, and approved call to action.
- Images and videos must have documented usage rights. Stock assets must include license source, license type, purchase date, and allowed regions.
- Any customer logo, testimonial, or case-study quote must have written permission stored in the campaign folder.

4. Data, Tracking, and Experimentation

- Before launch, Analytics must confirm that UTM parameters, conversion events, lead source mapping, and dashboard widgets are configured.
- The standard UTM format is: utm_source, utm_medium, utm_campaign, utm_content, and utm_region.
- A/B tests must define a hypothesis, primary metric, minimum sample size, test duration, and rollback condition.
- No campaign may launch if conversion tracking, consent banner behavior, or lead routing has not been verified in staging.

5. Launch Readiness Review

- The Campaign Owner must run a launch readiness review at least three business days before launch.
- Required attendees are Campaign Owner, Product Marketing Lead, Sales Representative, Analytics Contact, Design Lead, and Legal Reviewer when applicable.
- The readiness review must confirm final asset links, approval status, localization status, tracking validation, support handoff, and rollback plan.
- Open critical issues block launch. High-priority issues require Marketing Director approval to proceed. Medium and low issues may be tracked post-launch.

6. Post-Launch Reporting

- Within five business days after launch, the Campaign Owner must publish an initial performance summary.
- The report must include spend, impressions, click-through rate, conversion rate, cost per lead, qualified pipeline, top-performing message, and underperforming channel.
- Campaigns below 70 percent of the target conversion rate after seven days require an optimization action plan.
- The final retrospective must document lessons learned, reusable assets, experiment results, budget variance, and recommendations for the next campaign.
